

Mountains to Sound Greenway

National Heritage Area

The Mountains to Sound Greenway National Heritage Area encompasses over 1.5 million acres of connected natural lands and vibrant urban areas surrounding I-90 between Puget Sound and Central Washington. The Greenway conserves a shared heritage of working farms and forests, parks, sustainable communities and abundant outdoor educational and recreational opportunities. This map illustrates the role and distribution of our public land managers. Federal, state, county, and municipal agencies steward forests, parks, and watersheds for the public. Together, they manage close to two thirds of all lands in the Mountains to Sound Greenway.

Land Ownership

- | | | |
|--------------------------------------|------------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| Mountains to Sound Greenway Boundary | US Forest Service | County Parks |
| County Boundaries | WA Department of Natural Resources | Other Public Lands |
| Regional Trails | WA Department of Fish & Wildlife | Conserved Private Farms & Forests |
| Alpine Lakes Wilderness Boundary | Washington State Parks | Rural Private Lands |
| Tribal Trust Lands | Municipal Watersheds | Cities & Urban Growth Areas |

The information included on this map has been compiled from various sources and is subject to change without notice. While not guaranteed, every attempt has been made to present the information accurately and completely. November 2025.